Using Instagram is a hit for Jinxed antique shops

Fishtown. The popular vintage shop is very social media savvy.

Most would refer to Jinxed as a vintage decor shop, but when owner Mike Supermodel is asked about how to reference the store, his answer is a simple "I don't know."

"We sell antiques, but we don't just sell antiques," Supermodel said. "We sell T-shirts, but we don't just sell T-shirts. We sell books, but we don't just sell books. Everything has a thread that runs through it that is interesting or unique or handmade."

Jinxed, with products such as vintage toys, furniture, clothing, books, jewelry and more, has three locations — Fishtown, the Piazza and Tucker Digs off South Street. And they've employed a brilliant marketing scheme — posting select goods for their 17K Instagram followers.

You can see photos and read descriptions of the items, call the store, buy it and pick it up within two days. They'll comment with "SOLD" once the item has been purchased.

Jinxed started utilizing Instagram, Supermodel said, to give customers the immediacy of viewing a product while on the go as opposed to going through a flea market and digging through boxes.

Owner Mike Supermodel and Kelli Waldron pose at Jinxed's Fishtown location. / CHARLES MOSTOLLER, METRO

Supermodel's first Jinxed store on South Street opened in 2004 but closed during the recession. He opened a store at the Piazza in 2008. Later on, Supermodel thought the Piazza's new owners would shut him down so he opened the location on 611 Fourth Street in March 2013.

That same year, he opened the store's Fishtown location. The Piazza renewed his lease.

"It was never a master expansion plan [to open so many stores]," Supermodel said. "We just kind of kept trying to cover our behinds and then we wound up with three stores."

Last year, Supermodel saw that his friend's hair salon was honored with the Best Salon title in Philadelphia Magazine. This year, Supermodel looked through the magazine to see if the salon won for a second year and did not expect to see his own store recognized as Best Vintage Décor. "It was a very pleasant surprise."

Supermodel said the business received the title as the result of hard work.

"The staff does work endlessly — tirelessly," he added.

Juniata. Student jumps on top of train

A 16-year-old Mariana Bracetti Academy Charter School student, in an attempt to evade police Monday afternoon, jumped from one Market-Frankford Line train to the other.

A struggle ensued with police, and the student jumped the turnstile and hopped into a westbound train. Once inside, he stepped between the trains, climbed to the top and jumped onto an eastbound train when it rolled to a stop. He slid onto the platform, but was caught by police at street level.

North Philly. Temple brick attack girl, 15, to face charges as adult

A request by Zaria Estes, 15, charged with slamming a brick into a Temple student's face, to have her case moved to juvenile court was denied at a hearing Tuesday.

"This is one of the worst, most unprovoked, vicious assaults that I have ever seen committed, particularly by teenage girls," Judge Benjamin Lerner said before ruling that Estes must be tried as an adult. She could face up to 20 years on aggravated assault charges.

Estes, Kanesha Gainey, 16, and Najee Bilal, 15, allegedly attacked three female Temple students in separate attacks near the school's campus on March 21. Only Estes is charged with wielding a brick.

"I go over the attack in my head almost every day," said the 20-year-old brick-attack victim.

Her jaw was broken, she required oral surgery and was in recovery for a month. She later moved home because it was "too difficult to walk around Temple's campus without having a panic attack," she said.

Zaria Estes / PPD

Repercussions

The brick-smashing incident at 17th and Norris led to Temple extending police patrol this week.

- "As a direct result of this incident and after meetings and discussions, Temple University extended our patrol borders out to 18th Street," said Temple Police Captain Edward Woltemate.

Estes' attorney, Bill Davis, said his client should be tried as a juvenile because she did not initiate the spree of violence.

"She was hanging out with some wild girls and she got wild," he said. "She wasn't in the forefront, she wasn't leading the charge."

Prosecutor Paul Goldman disagreed.

"She knew what she was there to do," Goldman said. "They went up to Temple University to go and punch girls … just like a pack of predators looking for where they could find the most prey."

Gainey and Bilal both got their cases transferred to juvenile court under an agreement that they will plead guilty and serve at least two years in juvenile detention. SAM NEWHOUSE

Man admits to shooting migratory birds of prey

Randy Losasso, 69, of South Jersey, pleaded guilty Tuesday to federal charges that he killed or attempted to kill migratory hawks as they flew over his town.

He could face up to six months in prison.

Losasso was charged in August 2013 with shooting red-tailed, sharp-shinned, red-shouldered and Cooper's hawks with a .22 caliber rifle and a .17 pellet gun.

LeSean McCoy's 20-cent tip was 'insulting,' says owner

Northern Liberties. PYT waiter Rob Knelly claims the running back was "shady" on Monday.

Philadelphia Eagles star running back LeSean McCoy doesn't just cut on a dime on the football field, he apparently leaves them as tips.

McCoy, whose Twitter handle is @CutOnDime25, came under scrutiny Tuesday for apparently tipping 20 cents on a $61.56 bill Monday at a popular Northern Liberties burger joint.

Tommy Up, the outspoken owner of PYT, located at The Piazza at Schmidt's, was infuriated with the lack of hospitality and posted a photo of the receipt on Facebook with the message: "That is a .03% tip. New record!"

PYT owner Tommy Up posted LeSean McCoy's receipt online. He says it now hangs on his fridge. / PROVIDED

McCoy told the Daily News, "It's bull—, man," but wouldn't divulge more information. The newspaper further reported that McCoy wasn't happy with the service and the tip was a reflection of his experience.

"They were kind of being real d—s to our staff," he said. "Which is fine, you're allowed to be d—s to the staff as long as you tip them, I guess."

Since the news broke, the restaurant received several 1-star reviews on Yelp claiming experience with bad service.

"I'd like to say I'm sorry," Up said, "but these slanderous reports of bad service did not happen [to McCoy]," he said.

Maybe McCoy threw cash on the table?

"Nah," Up said. "The only dimes on the table were the two on the check. … and if it came down to it, we have excellent video surveillance of it."

The photo of a check with Sean Connery's name in place of McCoy's, which made the rounds on social media, was a fake, Up said. "I have the receipt on my fridge at home and it doesn't say Sean Connery."

Up said the fact that McCoy wrote in 20 cents under "Tip" is the worst part. "It was sort of the audacity of that that I found most insulting."

Report suggests MH-17 shot down from the ground

Malaysia Airlines. The crash occurred over pro-Russian, rebel-held territory in Ukraine on July 17.

Malaysia Airlines Flight MH-17 broke apart over Ukraine due to impact from a large number of fragments, the Dutch Safety Board said on Tuesday, in a report that Malaysia's prime minister and several experts said suggested it was shot down from the ground.

Ukraine and Western countries accuse the rebels of shooting it down with an advanced, Russian-made missile. The main rebel leader repeated earlier assertions that his forces did not possess such weapons.

The report said MH-17 crashed due to a "large number of high-energy objects" penetrating the fuselage. "There are no indications that the MH-17 crash was caused by a technical fault or by actions of the crew," it said.

Although the report did not mention a missile, impact with a large number of fragments would be consistent with a "proximity" warhead, designed to explode in the air and hurl shrapnel at its target, said Tim Ripley, an analyst with Jane's Defense Weekly magazine.

Such warheads can be fitted to a number of missiles, including the Russian-made BUK surface-to-air missile that Ukraine and Western allies say was fired by separatists. REUTERS

Investigation

A final report on the crash of MH-17 by the board is not expected until mid 2015.

- Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte said it was still too early to assign blame: "We need to be careful not to draw conclusions too quickly," he told reporters.
- The Netherlands is also running a separate investigation into the possibility of criminal charges against suspected culprits.

Quoted

"This leads to the strong suspicion that a surface-to-air missile brought MH-17 down, but further investigative work is needed before we can be certain."

Malaysian Prime Minister Najib Razak said in a statement

The crash killed 298 people, two-thirds of them from the Netherlands.

Ray Rice's wife rips the media

Video. The footage of Rice knocking his then-fiancee out has also put the NFL on the defensive.

Ray Rice's wife defended the former Ravens running back on Tuesday after a video showed him knocking her out, and assailed the media for its handling of an incident that put the National Football League on the defensive.

"I woke up this morning, feeling like I had a horrible nightmare, feeling like I'm mourning the death of my closest friend," Janay Rice wrote in an Instagram post. "But to have to accept the fact that it's reality is a nightmare itself."

Ray Rice, 27, one of the top running backs in the NFL, was released by the Ravens on Monday and suspended indefinitely by the league.

The video shows him striking Janay in the elevator of a New Jersey casino in February.

"No one knows the pain that the media and unwanted options from the public has caused my family," Janay wrote. "To make us relive a moment in our lives that we regret every day is a horrible thing."

The NFL said it had not seen the video until Monday, when it was released by TMZ.

It said it was never informed of its existence while it conducted a thorough investigation earlier this year. REUTERS

States probe Home Depot data breach

At least five states have launched a joint probe into the data breach on the payment-card processing systems of Home Depot Inc., even as the retailer works to determine the impact on its customers in the United States and Canada.

The coordinated effort was disclosed on Tuesday, a day after Home Depot confirmed suspicions that its payment processing systems have been breached.

A spokeswoman for Connecticut Attorney General George Jepsen told Reuters that California, Connecticut and Illinois would lead the multistate effort.

New York and Iowa said they would also participate.

"We have had initial contact with the company," said Jaclyn Falkowski, director of communications for Jepsen. "We would decline any further comment at this time."

A Home Depot spokeswoman said the company had nothing new to say beyond Monday's statement, which said the breach could have affected any customer who had used a payment card at any of its U.S. stores since April. REUTERS

Introducing iPhone 6

Shopping. Experts say the release of the mobile wallet Apple Pay was the biggest part of the announcement.

It's official: Welcome the iPhone 6 and the iPhone 6 Plus into the Apple family.

Apple CEO Tim Cook unveiled the company's latest smartphones at an event in Cupertino, California, on Tuesday. The 4.7-inch iPhone 6 and its larger counterpart, the 5.5-inch iPhone 6 Plus may be bigger than their previous counterparts, but Apple has managed to slim down the devices to 6.9 millimeters and 7.1 millimeters respectively from the 7.6-millimeter iPhone 5S.

The new models will run on Apple's latest operating system, iOS 8, increasing the speed for basic computing and processing. Coupled with the retina display, which will be 720p HD for the iPhone 6 and 1080p HD for the iPhone 6 Plus, it primes the device for gaming and improved photographic capabilities.

Other additions, including a barometer to measure elevation and an M8 co-processor to track motion data, further customize the smartphone for health and fitness apps.

The features pair it perfectly with the company's first smartwatch, the Apple Watch, due to be released in 2015, which was also announced Tuesday. The tech wearable can track biometric stats, but only works with a corresponding iPhone 5 or 6.

Apple also introduced Apple Pay, the previously rumored mobile wallet payment system that uses near-field communications (NFC). It will allow iPhone 6 users to buy goods with their Mastercard, Visa and American Express accounts by waving their devices a few inches over paired scanners. The cashier and Apple will not have access to the purchaser's credit card info. Instead, the technology will use a unique one-time use "dynamic security code" for each transaction.

"I think the masterstroke for Apple Pay is that it aims to make it easier to spend money where it's already being spent, in-

Prostate Health Assessment Event

The Sidney Kimmel Cancer Center at Thomas Jefferson University and Prostate Health International's Gary Papa Run are offering free prostate screenings as part of a research program. Prostate cancer is the second leading cause of cancer death among men. Screening is important because prostate cancer shows no symptoms in its earliest stages.

Many organizations recommend prostate health assessment as part of men's healthcare.

Free screenings, including a blood test for prostate specific antigen (PSA), testosterone and cholesterol and a digital rectal exam, will take place at the following two locations:

- Wednesday, September 17, 2014, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., at the Sidney Kimmel Cancer Center – Bodine Building, 111 South 11th Street, Center City
- Friday, October 3, 2014, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., at Jefferson at the Navy Yard – 3 Crescent Drive, Suite 100, South Philadelphia

Registration is required. To register for your free screenings, or for more information, call 1-800-JEFF-NOW.

stead of trying to reinvent how people spend their money," Jack Narcotta, analyst at Technology Business Research, Inc., said.

AppleInsider Editor Mikey Campbell added that he felt Apple Pay was the focus of Tuesday's announcement.

"Customers can whip out their iPhone 6 to pay for a variety of goods and services at some 220,000 point-of-sale terminals supporting contactless purchasing," he said. "That, combined with Apple's massive installed user base, makes for a powerful bargaining chip toward future expansion, something previous mobile payments systems from Google and others lacked. It seems Apple has been busy lining up retail partnerships for launch, ensuring the initial rollout is broad and of value to consumers."

Though all the bells and whistles sound like improvements, analyst Jack E. Gold said the devices improved upon already available smartphone technology.

"[Apple's customer] base will enjoy the improvements, but it's not clear what it announced will dramatically change the landscape," he said.

Family finances

Single moms over 40 making it work

Birth rates for unmarried women over 40 have been heading up in recent years, according to new data compiled by the National Center for Health Statistics.

In 2012, the rate was 29 percent higher than just five years earlier. In other age groups, the rate of births to unmarried women has been heading in the opposite direction. A combination of medical advances and lessened social stigma of having a baby outside of marriage make middle-age childbearing more prevalent than in the past. REUTERS

By the numbers

A middle-income family having a child in 2013 will lay out more than $240,000 before the kid turns 18.

Higher Ed. Report: US falling behind in the college competition

College graduation rates in the United States lag behind those of other wealthy nations. / GETTY IMAGES

The United States has slipped behind many other countries in college completion and "educational mobility," with fewer young Americans getting more education than their parents, according to the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development's "Education at a Glance" report.

U.S. college graduation rates rank 19th out of 28 countries studied by the OECD, which tracks education investment and performance of wealthier democracies, said OECD director for education and skills Andreas Schleicher.

The lack of educational mobility has serious implications for individuals and society, he noted. Higher education levels are associated not just with higher earnings, but also with better health, more community engagement and more trust in governments, institutions and other people.

About half of young people in OECD countries have at least matched their parents' level of education. But in the U.S., a larger-than-average proportion had less education. REUTERS

Trying to get in

In addition to less educational mobility, the United States, along with Japan, Germany, Austria and Estonia, has "less equitable access."

- He said that contrasts with countries such as Finland, Ireland, Australia and the Netherlands, which have more equitable access to education and higher educational mobility.
- An argument could be made that the United States has less mobility because more of its population already had degrees than many other countries, "but you can see countries with similar attainment levels [as] the U.S. showing still a much higher degree of educational mobility," Schleicher said.

Royal gossip: Dirty Diana?

Was Princess Diana not quite as nice as we might have thought?
ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Royal gossip is hot now, right? What with that whole new royal baby thing. So get this: There's a chance that the People's Princess wasn't so lovely after all, if unauthorized tell-alls are any indication. According to a new book about Prince Harry written by Penny Junor, the spare heir's late mother, Princess Diana, had something of a dark streak when it came to dealing with her rivals. Case in point: Diana was so consumed with jealousy toward Camilla Parker Bowles that she would call Bowles' country home and declare, "I've sent someone to kill you. They're outside in the garden. Look out of the window — can you see them?" That's some bold sauce, Di.

Swift has 'Bad Blood' with a mysterious famous female

I suppose this counts as personal growth: Taylor Swift's songwriting has progressed from being about ex-boyfriends to being about ex-friends. Or at least this one new song, "Bad Blood," is. And with any Swift ditty, the real fun comes in trying to decipher the secret subject, Swiftian wordplay be damned. "For years, I was never sure if we were friends or not. She would come up to me at awards shows and say something and walk away, and I would think, 'Are we friends, or did she just give me the harshest insult of my life?'" Swift tells Rolling Stone. "[Then last year] she did something so horrible. I was like, 'Oh, we're just straight-up enemies.' And it wasn't even about a guy!" They are never ever, ever getting facials together! So what was the last straw between Swift and her mystery frenemy? "It had to do with business. She basically tried to sabotage an entire arena tour. She tried to hire a bunch of people out from under me," she says. "So now I have to avoid her. It's awkward, and I don't like it." On a possibly unrelated (but probably not unrelated) note, when the interview went live, Katy Perry tweeted an ominous "Mean Girls"-inspired warning: "Watch out for the Regina George in sheep's clothing." Yikes!

Today, Sarah Silverman is feeling ashamed, Craig Ferguson understands the world we live in now and Lena Dunham is trying to remain optimistic.

@SarahKSilverman: I cannot clear my history enough. I wish I could bleach it.

@CraigyFerg: "I've got a great idea for an app" is the new "I'm writing a screenplay"

Jennifer Lopez needs 'time to just chill'

Guys, don't worry about Jennifer Lopez, even if she did just go through a breakup. She's going to go ahead and stay single for a while. "I'm just being on my own. I feel like I need that right now. I've been in relationships kind of back-to-back my whole life and I just needed time," Lopez tells Meredith Vieira during an interview. "I need time to just chill and just know me and enjoy my kids and actually make time for other friends instead of just the relationship thing."

J.Lo says she wants "time to just chill and just know me." She's 45! Doesn't she know herself by now?

There are at least 'Fifty Shades' of Charlie Hunnam

Charlie Hunnam is trying to get out in front of possibly only being remembered as the actor who quit "Fifty Shades of Grey," despite memorable work in "Sons of Anarchy," "Pacific Rim" and other projects. Hunnam infamously opted out of the racy novel adaptation after being cast as kinky Christian Grey, a decision he's found he needs to justify. "I wouldn't have signed up in the first place if I didn't want to do it. It was a really, really difficult time in my life," he tells Moviefone. "I just had like, frankly, something of a nervous breakdown. … It was just a s— situation. I was really, really, sorry to do it. It was one of those damned if you do, damned if you don't situations."

'MORMON' TAKES A BOW, DAVID LYNCH RETURNS

BOLDFACE

A.D. AMOROSI

A.D. Amorosi is a journalist covering arts, entertainment and food news and gossip. He can be reached at divaland@aol.com.

Jennifer Salhoff is starting her gig as executive chef at Cuba Libre — after working at Cerise in Bryn Mawr and Fork on Market Street as its pastry chef — the same week that she'll debut on Fox TV's "Hell's Kitchen," hosted by Gordon Ramsay. Cuba Libre is taking advantage of this with a first-episode viewing party tonight.

Jodi Throckmorton has been named curator of contemporary art at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, just in time for David Lynch to return to Philly for his massive retrospective exhibition at PAFA, opening Sept. 13.

It's starting to look as if Keen, Randall Hoppmann's redo of the 17th and Lombard space that housed Astral Plane, Millennium, Fish and Brick American Eatery, is slicing, dicing and shooting for an October opening. Christopher and Caitlin Rorer will run the kitchen.

Actor David Morse performed the first reading of "White Rabbit, Red Rabbit" at the Fringe Festival.

KEVIN MONKO

When Iranian playwright Nassim Soleimanpour's "White Rabbit, Red Rabbit" opened at FringeArts' waterfront theater on Saturday, Philly thespian David Morse ("Treme," "World War Z," "Horns," the locally filmed "McCanick") took the stage. The colorful "Rabbit" drama features different lead actors during every performance, each reading the script for the first time. It's now at Christ Church Neighborhood House for the rest of its Fringe Fest run.

Seen on the scene

KJ HIPPENSTEEL AND JOSH BRECKENRIDGE

A.D. AMOROSI

- 'The Book of Mormon' will be performed at Forrest Theatre from July 29 to Sept. 14. In between, it broke the Forrest box office record for ticket sales, which was set by 'Jersey Boys' in 2012. Outside the theater, lead actor KJ Hippensteel, who plays Elder Price, and Josh Breckenridge, the doctor who yells the "maggots in my scrotum" line, mentioned that there are still a few tickets available (www.telecharge.com).

- A week before the competition, all 53 Miss America contestants ate at The Continental in Atlantic City.

Both Noomi Rapace and Tom Hardy will do anything to transform themselves for a role. The puppy, however, is not quite as versatile. "The Drop" is out Friday. / FOX SEARCHLIGHT

Bonus question

Pushing the limits

Is there anything a role has required that you've just thought was going too far?
No, not yet. [Laughs] Although I did a movie called "Daisy Diamond" that was really quite far out. I played a woman who has a baby and can't take care of it. She loses control and actually kills the baby in the middle of the film, and then becomes a prostitute. It won a ton of prizes in some countries, and other countries — like Sweden — did not like the movie. So it's interesting to see how different cultures take it, how in Sweden they saw the movie and judged it, while in Denmark I won every prize. I like to provoke, to be like a nail in the eye ... to do things that are not always comfortable.

Q&A
NOOMI RAPACE IDENTITY CRISIS

NOOMI RAPACE IS "ALL INTO PINK NOW." GETTY IMAGES

"The Drop" is another movie in which the actress looks completely unlike herself.

It's a little surprising to see Noomi Rapace in person as a blonde. And not just a blonde — she's even got a streak of pink running down her braid. And gold necklaces and earrings shouting words like "boom." It's a far cry from her star-making work in "The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo," or even Nadia, the guarded former drug addict she plays in "The Drop" alongside Tom Hardy. And it looks like all that blonde hair is having an effect on her.

What brought that on?
Oh, the pink? I'm all into pink now. [Laughs] It's my blonde me. I don't know, it's interesting. I went blonde for a movie, and it kind of affects you. When I was doing "The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo," after that I couldn't wear black for like a year, and I love black. And then a couple of years ago I came back to being able to wear black, and now I'm into pink and red and stuff. Complete identity crisis. [Laughs]

Are you going to start looking for roles that are more — ?
Pink? Barbies, yeah. I want to do a f—ed up Barbie character. That would be awesome. ... I like the transformation. When I read a script, I always ask myself, "What do I need to do? Who is this person and how will I become her?" I can gain weight, I can lose weight, I can shave my head, I can be blonde, I can do piercings. I do pretty much anything. I made a decision when I was 22 that I will never make a choice out of vanity. It doesn't matter if I'm ugly in a movie. I have let that go because I can't work if I'm worried about how I look. And someone like Tom Hardy, he's the same. ... Whatever is needed for the character is always more important than your own personal issues.

The Weekly Yelp. Yelpers' favorite cocktail bars in Philly

There's a time and place for beers in blue jeans or wine on your couch, but every once in a while you've just got to throw on your nicest threads and enjoy a good old-fashioned cocktail, Don Draper-style. Thankfully, Philadelphia has plenty of spots that will transport you to a simpler time where the drinks were strong and the lighting was dim.

NEW DIABETES STUDY SHOWS:
*Insulin Shots More Than Double the Risk of DEATH in Type II Diabetics

A new clinical study has shown that the disease of TYPE II DIABETES CAN BEGIN TO BE REVERSED in as little as 1 WEEK!

A free guide has just been made available to Type II Diabetics detailing an approach that appears to be more powerful than any drug known to modern science. The free diabetic guide explains in plain English how many diabetics have been able to reduce and eliminate their drugs and insulin injections, lose weight without exercise, reduce and eliminate the risk for diabetic complications, restore pancreatic function, and even become non-diabetic.

The free guide also reveals rarely used diagnostic testing that is helping doctors understand potential causes of diabetes beyond weight gain, genetics and lack of exercise.

Attracting an older crowd

What makes a city neighborhood stand out? Most urbanites would say it's easily accessible locations, with a wide variety of nightlife options, inspired restaurants (including those hole-in-the-wall gems) and intriguing culture. And it's not just the younger urban crowd looking for that combo — empty nesters are coming back to the city "in droves," says David Snyder of Berkshire Hathaway Home Services Fox & Roach. And they have the same checklist.

Timothy Garrity at U S Spaces says he's seeing this population move into the city every day. "For most empty nesters, moving to Philadelphia offers more options for downsizing and convenience," he says. "Also, low-to-no-maintenance living is appealing to that demographic. No more yard work, no more exterior maintenance and no more driving."

Garrity sees Center City as the go-to neighborhood for empty nesters, for two reasons. "It's the most convenient section of Philadelphia," he says, "and it's the most urban section of Philadelphia," by which he means it's highly populated. But while the older crowd might not be pouring into NoLibs or Pennsport, they are, occasionally, straying from Rittenhouse.

"It used to be that everyone was going to Rittenhouse and living in a high-rise. Everyone wanted a building with a doorman," Snyder explains. "Now they want a more 'urban' setting. We see a lot of people moving to Old City, Society Hill and Fitler Square."

And who goes where? "People who are more interested in the galleries, for example, move to Old City," Snyder says. "People pick a neighborhood based on their interests."

JULIA WEST
@MetroPhilly

The high-rises near Rittenhouse Square have traditionally been popular with empty nesters — and that hasn't changed.

Checklist

What are empty nesters looking for?

"They don't want to do the work they did in their earlier life," says David Snyder, putting yard work and home maintenance at the top of that list. "They want an ease of transition into the new residence. What's important is being close to their interests and their friends and families."

Laundry magic

Wrinkle Releaser Plus

For those of us who don't know how to iron or just don't want to (which is everyone, right?), Downy created Wrinkle Releaser Plus to banish creases and odors. The spray makes your clothes smells like clean laundry — but any fabric refresher can do that. The magic Downy's spray brings to the table is that it really gets rid of all wrinkles, without ironing or steaming.

We've tried it on a variety of fabrics: Just spray, tug, wait five minutes, and poof! You're ready to go about wrinkle-free. It also comes in a 3-oz. travel size so you can pop it in a carry-on.

Tommy Hilfiger

1 The flower crowns and boho dresses that dominate Coachella's free spirits are so over. Tommy Hilfiger looked to the '60s and '70s music-festival girl to show you how to rock out in style. With a set designed like Woodstock, complete with a live drummer and flora-lined runway, Hilfiger sent down sleek, fitted military-inspired suiting in burgundy and black with pops of gold — oh, how very Sgt. Pepper of him. The retro influence continued with flared patchwork denim, effortless tunics with belts slung low and mod suede shifts with star patterns cut out along the hem. Elsewhere, the celestial motif appeared on big faux-fur jackets (yes, for spring!), sheer chiffon gowns and a scallop-edge bikini, modeled by none other than Kendall Jenner, officially making her rounds on the New York Fashion Week runway. But the real scene-stealer: a colorful, carefree striped crochet frock. Now that's for a girl who wants to stand out from the crowd. TINA CHADHA

DKNY

The designer culled from the city's melting pot for bold geometric prints, colorful graphic stripes and ethnic paisleys that appeared on long, lean, often oversized silhouettes.

As if there weren't enough going on, the looks came layered: Miniskirts, such as a sequin embellished number, were thrown over long, striped tube skirts. The magpie effect worked, thanks to a sublime color palette of tomato red, navy, caress blue, lime and nude — just as varied and interesting as the residents that make up this town. TC

MAKER FAIRE ATTRACTS AN ALCHEMIST

Looks like some ordinary low-tech paint, right? Wrong! These are some hi-tech DIY pigments, possibly made from bugs or flowers! / MAKER FAIRE

Our computers and smartphones would not operate without the materials developers used to create silicon-based integrated circuits. One way or another, chemistry underlies just about everything we do. The roots of chemistry stretch back to people's early attempts to understand and manipulate the materials around them through the study and practice of alchemy.

Today we tend to be a step removed from the materials that make up the finished products we use. Patricia Miranda of Alchemical Tech wants to put you back in touch with the way natural materials are turned into the tools we use to create art and technology.

Miranda will be at World Maker Faire in New York later this month showing people how to turn materials like stones, bugs and flowers into colorful pigments. She will have lots of natural materials on hand to show the sources of colors. Visitors can use the paint to create their own art while gaining a deeper understanding of the world around them. Come experience a bit of the science people have used through the centuries to add color to our world.

— The 2014 World Maker Faire will be held at New York Hall of Science on Sept. 20 and 21. Go to Maker Faire.com for more info.

Get a dose of reality

This spring's 20-state outbreak of measles was surprising if you know that the U.S. was declared measles-free in 2000. But with about 10 percent of Americans opting out of vaccinations because of confusion about the possible risks, health officials were not shocked. How did we get here?

Essentially, says Dr. Paul Offit of Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, who helped invent the vaccine against rotavirus, vaccination has been too successful: "I think we're compelled more by fear than reason, and we don't fear these diseases because we don't see them."

In the 1920s, his parents saw diptheria kill scores of teenagers. Offit grew up in the '50s and '60s before the development of vaccines and suffered through "all the childhood diseases," including measles. "But my children, who are 22 and 19, not only don't see these diseases, they didn't grow up with these diseases," he says. "So for them, it's a matter of faith — and faith in who? Faith in pharmaceutical companies, the federal government, the medical establishment?"

We asked Offit, who is featured in a new NOVA documentary about vaccines airing tonight on PBS, to dispel some common myths.

On TV

'Vaccines — Calling the Shots'
Tonight, 9 p.m.

Vaccines and autism are linked

Offit calls this a "cautionary tale" of what can happen when people are desperate for answers. It began with a British researcher who published a biased, flawed study in 1998. Since then, tens of millions of dollars have been spent on research to disprove it. The program notes that new autism studies point to brain abnormalities detectable in the womb — meaning the disorder is genetic.

Mercury in preservatives poses a hazard

Thymerosal is no longer used in the typical vaccines given to kids, Offit says, with the exception of some multidose flu vaccines. The mercury in thymerosal is not the same as environmental mercury — this is another case of not knowing where the real risks lay, he says: "The most dangerous aspect of getting vaccines is driving to the office to get them."

Healthy people don't need them

Viruses don't care how many fruits and vegetables you eat — your body won't know how to defend itself unless it has come into contact with the specific virus before. The only way to build immunity is to get vaccinated or become infected. "So you'd prefer it to see that virus in a controlled, benign way with vaccination, rather than in an uncontrolled way."

HPV vaccine makes teens promiscuous

"This doesn't make sense on its surface," Offit says, likening it to "the notion that if you get a tetanus vaccine, you now feel you can run across a bed of rusty nails." A study of more than 1,200 girls found that it doesn't increase risky sexual behavior. What it does do is offer protection from the most common types of HPV that cause genital warts and cancers.

A few people opting out won't matter

For highly infectious diseases such as measles, 95 percent of a community must be vaccinated. If the rate drops below that threshold, the "herd immunity" that protects those with the weakest immune systems is lost. Though measles was considered eradicated in the U.S., all it takes is an unvaccinated person being infected in a foreign country to bring it back.

The side effects can be dangerous

An allergic reaction to a vaccine is a literal one-in-a-million chance, according to the documentary. Moreover, analysis of data from the more than 35 million women who got the HPV vaccine has shown that is does not cause "mental retardation," as Rep. Michele Bachmann claimed.

Horoscope

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. This is not the day to try to outwit the opposition. You will get further if you spend some downtime relaxing.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. Don't allow anyone to undermine your integrity. Stay in control and in command. Be firm, and refuse to let anyone steal your ideas or take credit.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. Put your ideas into practice. Stop procrastinating. If you keep jumping from project to project, you can't expect to get ahead.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Your day will bring you more benefits than you anticipate. Results will occur if you make changes.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. Plan your next move. If you rush ahead without considering the consequences, you will be disappointed with the results. A slow approach will be in your best interest.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. You are a prime candidate for a leadership position. Invest in yourself and let your dynamic personality propel you forward.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Think twice before you decide to eliminate things from your life. You will not get the chance to recover something you abandon.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. Watch out for damaging gossip about you that is currently circulating. The best way to combat negative attention is to maintain a trustworthy reputation.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Add comfort and value to your home with renovations or upgrades. A small mistake will escalate into big trouble.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. An upsetting turn of events will work out to your advantage. More cash will come your way if you check out new options.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Don't get hung up on what's happening around you. Keep your emotions out of the equation. Remain focused.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Romance is looking good for you. This will be a great day to seek recognition for your work. New friends are heading your way.

Confusion compounded

Re: 'Obama needs to take charge' (Metro, Sept. 9)
A correction is in order: Al Haig was in Richard Nixon's Administration during Watergate, but he did not claim to be in charge then. It was in the hours following the assassination attempt on Ronald Reagan, who was unconscious, when a reporter asked then-Secretary of State Haig who was in charge, and he replied that he was. Haig took a lot of heat for the remark, but his explanation is plausible. Haig thought the reporter was referring to the immediate group of administration officials presently in the White House, not the whole country.

KEVIN METZ, VIA EMAIL

Don't just punish

I wonder if the NFL suspension will help the situation. Obviously, Ray Rice has anger management disorders that need to be addressed through long-term therapy. His wife also needs therapy because victims of domestic violence often believe that they are the cause of the violence, according to Dr. Abby Stein of John Jay College. My hope is that the NFL will require and sponsor (i.e., pay for) some sort of therapy. Otherwise, they are simply compounding the cycle of domestic abuse.

Hammy problems

Rollins hopes to return in Oakland

Jimmy Rollins strained his left hamstring sprinting out a triple against the Pirates on Monday, but according to the shortstop, the setback won't be season-ending. "It isn't that severe," Rollins said. "But there's never a couple of days with hamstrings. No matter if it's a Grade 1 strain of whatever, you're looking at 10 days. So, just going off that, hopefully I can be back somewhere around Oakland."

Owls' linebacker Smith plays for higher calling

Nate D. Smith has an NFL pedigree in his blood, and continued excellence on the Owls' defense could see him follow in his brother's footsteps. / GETTY IMAGES

Sadly, Temple linebacker Nate D. Smith's biggest fan was not among the 28,408 fans at the Linc this past Saturday who watched Navy use its potent ground game to down the Owls 31-24.

Kathy Smith, who died this past spring, didn't get to witness her son's team-leading 13 tackles (nine unassisted). But as far as Nate D's concerned, though, his mother was there for every play.

"Today she'd tell me, 'Don't let them boys touch you,'" laughed Nate D, who goes by that name to distinguish himself from his teammate, defensive back Nate L. Smith. "'Get them off you and make those plays.' After today's performance she'd probably cuss me out. I had a couple of errors, [some] missed assignments. Stats can mean the world to some people. I'd rather have team success. If my team's doing well I'm happy."

If Smith can lead Matt Rhule's 1-1 Owls to a flock of wins this year he might even be happier than that February evening in Jacksonville when the Eagles drew first blood in Super Bowl XXXIX on a Donovan McNabb-to-L.J. Smith touchdown pass. The same L.J Smith who happens to be Nate's brother.

Quoted

"Nate has a nose for the ball. He might go the wrong way, but somehow there'll be a pile and he'll be in the middle of it. Nate's a big key to our defense."

Temple linebacker Tyler Matakevich

"That was breathtaking," recalled the 23-year-old, who was 13 at the time. "I felt like I scored, that's how excited I was. I'd come to all the home games and some of the away games. When I told him I'd be coming here, he said, 'They're gonna love you when you're up and hate you when you're down.' But I love the city of Philadelphia. They love their sports."

Even if he has to frequently be reminded how the Eagles passed on Jason Witten in the 2003 draft to take L.J.

Since coming to Temple, the 6-foot, 230-pound redshirt junior has made his presence felt — last year racking up 47 solo tackles and three sacks, third-best on the team. With 17 tackles through the first two games this season he's already building on it.

His burden, on and off the field, is shared by his Temple family.

"Nate's one of my closest friends here," said linebacker Tyler Matakevich "After his mother died I couldn't imagine how he feels. But he's a warrior. He'll fight through anything."

But Nate D. Smith has managed to move on, saying his main purpose is to continue to make his mother proud. At the same time he's watching his "namesake" whom he considers almost a little brother, grow up, too.

"At first it was hilarious," laughed Nate D. "He's 'Nate L.' I'm Nate D. When I heard he was coming here I thought, 'It's so weird. He has the same name as me.' At first I thought we might be related. I was asking him questions about his family and he asked about my family."

The Smith "brothers" will be off this Saturday, as Temple enjoys a bye week before taking on Delaware State on Sept. 20. By then the defense hopes to play more like it did in its 37-7 rout of Vanderbilt in its opener than Saturday.

NFL. Eagles' Barbre likely to undergo season-ending surgery

The Eagles are dealing with a bevy of offensive line injuries. / GETTY IMAGES

The Eagles look like they will need to continue their offensive linemen shuffle against the Colts in Week 2.

With Lane Johnson serving the second week of his four-week suspension, the Eagles offensive line suffered a big loss Sunday when Allen Barbre went down with a high-ankle injury.

Reports from ESPN's Adam Caplan say the injury will require season-ending surgery.

All-Pro left guard Evan Mathis also exited the first half vs. the Jaguars with an MCL sprain and is expected be on the IR, designated for return on Nov. 4, though, and not the entire season.

The Eagles made three roster moves Tuesday, first announcing the signing of 11-year veteran and former Pro-Bowl offensive lineman Wade Smith. They also signed linebacker Emmanuel Acho and tackle Kevin Graf from the practice squad to replace the two injured linemen, as well as linebacker Najee Goode, who was put on the IR. METRO

Walk the line

The Eagles are suddenly faced with terrible offensive line woes.

- Lane Johnson: Suspended till Week 5
- Allen Barbre: Out for season with ankle injury.
- Matt Tobin: Out at least one more week with high-ankle sprain.
- Evan Mathis: Out several weeks with an MCL sprain.

Rare score

Cox proud of his first NFL touchdown

Fletcher Cox didn't expect to pick up a loose ball from the Jaguars with the Eagles already ahead 27-17 Sunday. Not needing any more points, the Birds really just needed to get the ball back and run the clock down.

"To be honest, I should have fallen to the ground," he said of his fumble recovery. "But it's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for a lineman to get a football and have open field. The right thing to do was to get down and let the offense take it."

Cox said later he would probable frame the ball, which he kept after the play. METRO

Something special

Kelly says special teams much improved

No one is really talking about the Eagles' special teams unit, which is a good thing.

In their Week 1 game the Eagles blocked a field goal, scored two of their own and created some big returns for Darren Sproles while limiting production from the Jaguars.

"I thought our special teams was obviously a little bit, you know, improved from what it was a year ago," Chip Kelly said. "You had five touchbacks and the two kickoffs that were taken out, one from the 13 and one was taken from the 14. We excelled I think in the punt return." METRO

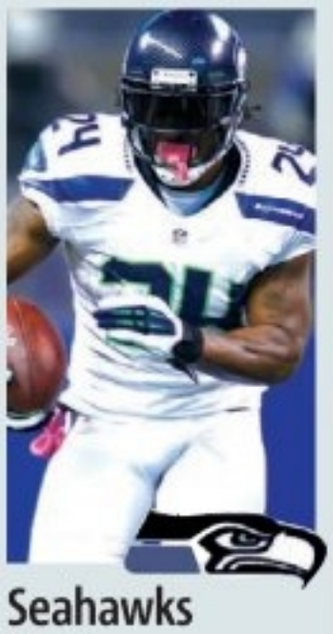
NFL power rankings | by Matt Burke

No. 1



Seahawks (1-0)

Is it us or is Russell Wilson still underrated? Sure, Wilson didn't have to face what could be the best NFL defense since the '85 Bears like his Week 1 counterpart, Aaron Rodgers. But he did outperform the Green Bay QB. Wilson had a rating of 110.9 in Week 1, throwing a pair of touchdowns.

No. 2

Broncos (1-0)

Our top two remains unchanged from last week and from last year. Denver allowed Indy to get back in the game Sunday but still hung on to win their 2014 opener.

No. 3

49ers (1-0)

Rumors of their demise have been greatly exaggerated. Despite numerous absences on defense, their unit looked as good as ever.

No. 4

Falcons (1-0)

There is no Hard Knocks jinx. Beating the Saints in a shootout is tough to do, but Matt Ryan was up to the task, passing for 448 yards and three TDs.

No. 5

Bengals (1-0)

Cincy could very well have an elite, NFC-caliber defense. Lucky for them, they're in the AFC, which means they could be in the hunt for a playoff bye.

No. 6

Lions (1-0)

Maybe it was the national TV exposure or maybe the Giants are just plain bad this season, but damn did that Detroit offense look good on Monday night.

No. 7

Cardinals (1-0)

Arizona had just six points at halftime against the Chargers on Monday, but Carson Palmer finished with a rating of 108.4, throwing for 304 yards.

No. 8

Eagles (1-0)

Critics were ready to pounce on the Eagles for their poor first half. But their second half was dominant as they scored 34 unanswered points.

No. 9

Dolphins (1-0)

Ryan Tannehill wasn't great against the Patriots, but he won't have to be anything close to Marino-esque if the Miami defense plays like it did.

No. 10

Packers (0-1)

They get a pass for what transpired last Thursday night. Hell, Lombardi's 1962 Packers weren't going into Seattle and winning on Super Bowl banner night.

No. 11

Panthers (1-0)

Maybe we were wrong about this group. The defense looked as dominant as it did last season, blanking the Bucs for the first three quarters Sunday.

No. 12

Saints (0-1)

Here's guessing the Saints' offensive effort against Atlanta would have beaten most teams in the league with newcomer Jairus Byrd.

No. 13

Steelers (1-0)

Their second-half effort was alarming, but in the first half Big Ben looked like he was 24-years-old again. Looks like it could be a good year for the QB.

No. 14

Bills (1-0)

Most pundits had the Bears being a playoff lock. But the Buffalo defense confused Jay Cutler on Sunday while E.J. Manuel looked more than capable.

No. 15

Patriots (0-1)

What happened to that "improved" Pats defense? Maybe the Dolphins are legit, or maybe D-coordinator Matt Patricia should start taking some heat.

No. 16

Vikings (1-0)

Cordarrelle Patterson was one of those "buzz" guys in the preseason and he more than lived up to the billing in a Week 1 victory.

No. 17

Jets (1-0)

A slow clap for the Jets, here. You beat the Raiders at home. Oh, it's praise you want? Fine. We'll give Geno Smith props for looking improved.

No. 18

Titans (1-0)

The Chiefs were the team voted "most likely to regress" by an unofficial poll I just made up in my mind that surveyed zero Americans. The Titans beat them on Sunday.

Return of the Mac

Matthews is glad to have Maclin back

For Eagles rookie wide receiver Jordan Matthews, it was one thing to win during his NFL debut. It was another entirely to watch teammate Jeremy Maclin score the go-ahead touchdown.

After going more than a year without playing football due to surgery to repair a torn ACL, Maclin was quiet for most of the Jaguars game. But he finally broke through for a 68-yard bomb that put the Eagles ahead for good.

"Return of the Mac, right?" Matthews said laughing. "I was so happy to see him go and get in the zone, he is always trying to go out there and make plays. I was telling him, 'it's going to come to you,' and it came at a big moment."

Maclin led all Eagles' receivers with 97 yards on four receptions and looked like the deep threat he was way back in 2012, the last time he suited up in a regular season game.

"I couldn't be happier for a guy like that," Matthews said. "Everybody knows about the adversity he's gone through, missing football for an entire year. To be able to come back and score the winning touchdown, it's almost poetic." EVAN MACY

LEGAL NOTICES

STATE OF MAINE CUMBERLAND, ss — PROBATE COURT

NOTICE TO PUTATIVE FATHER ABOUT PENDING ADOPTION

In the Matter of the Adoption Petition of: Zane Alley

This notice is directed to Justin DiPietro 29 Violette Avenue Waterville Me 04901 that Angela Alley wishes to consent to the adoption of her child named Zane Alley who was born on January 23, 2014 or to execute a surrender and release of her rights to the child which will allow the child to be adopted. She has named you as the father of said child. You have not consented to the adoption according to the records of this Court. The adoption, consent or the surrender and release has been filed and is pending in the Probate Court in Cumberland County.

If you wish to establish your parental rights to this child, you must, within 20 days from the date this notice was served, file a petition with the Judge of the Probate Court in Cumberland County requesting that the judge grant to you parental rights of this child.

You must file your petition with the Court in Cumberland County Probate Court at 142 Federal Street Portland Me 04101 and send a copy of the petition to the mother at 28 State Street Gorham Maine 04038.

If you file a petition within 20 days you must include an allegation that you are in fact the birth father of the child and the Judge will set a date for hearing to determine whether you shall have parental rights to this child.

If you do not petition within 20 days, the Judge shall rule that you have no parental rights and that only the birth mother of the child need consent to the adoption or execute a surrender and release. Upon such a ruling, you lose all rights to prove that you are the child's father or that you have any legal relationship with this child.

If you want an attorney to represent you and you are unable to afford one, the court will appoint and pay for an attorney for you. You must come to this court in person or apply in writing for the appointment of an attorney within 20 days of service of this notice. If you have applied for the appointment of a lawyer, the court will extend the time in which you must petition to establish your parental rights until your attorney has had an opportunity to review this case and advise you.
